It is understood and agreed that because business transactions are conducted electronically that the credit card need not be present in order for charges to be valid and that the validity of such charges will not be challenged for that reason. It is understood that the person, firm or company (herein referred to as the "customer") is to whom credit is granted. The customer may have a third party pay an invoice directly. However, it is understood and agreed to no relationship with such third parties and has no obligation to collect from them. Payment obligation rests solely with the customer to whom credit is granted and will hold that customer liable for payment of any invoices and reserves the right to restrict the credit of any customer for any reason. It is also agreed that this contract is negotiated in Los Angeles, California. It is understood that by signing this agreement you agree to our terms of use and privacy policy.
